

Does one street fit all? Tailoring streets for people

Tuesday

20 November 2007

Central London EC1V 2TT

How can you get the best out of your streets? As ever more focus is put on the quality of public space, it's clear that the one size fits all approach to streets needs to be thrown out and a new reality embraced. It's an exciting prospect that should bring together professionals from many different backgrounds.

This conference will leave you confident about how to get the best out of your unique streets – creating a safe and attractive environment for all users. Whether it's streets for shopping, playing, or as a destination in themselves, our expert speakers and examples from around the UK will leave you packed with practical ideas on how to rejuvenate and improve your streets, with a clear vision of their purpose in your community.

Topics include:

- Shopping Streets: redressing the balance for people on foot
- Destination Places: rejuvenating Manchester's Chinatown
- Save our Streets Campaign
- Playing Streets
- Slower speed initiatives
- Shared space, shared surfaces
- Building sustainable city centres and more

Speakers from:

- Manchester City Centre Management Company
- Westminster City Council
- Guide Dogs for the Blind
- Transport Initiatives
- London Living Streets
- Road Peace
- Play England
- English Heritage (invited)
- East Sussex County Council (invited)

Essential for: Regeneration, Housing, Transport Professionals, Neighbourhood and Town Centre Managers, Planners, Walking & Access Officers, Urban Designers, Architects, Streetscene Managers, Consultants and Developers

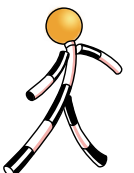

Hosted by:

About Living Streets

Living Streets is the national charity which campaigns for better streets and public spaces for people on foot. We work on practical projects to improve public space, and train professionals to increase their understanding of what makes healthier, safer, more walkable spaces.
